

Lithographed postcard with colour lithograph map, dissected in five pieces, four of which are moving. [now missing piece of Austria!]

HUNGARIA 896-1918

Hungaria 896-1918.

Author
The Hungarian Women's National Association

Publication date
[1920].

Publisher
Emich,

Publication place

Physical description
Lithographed postcard with colour lithograph map, dissected in five pieces, four of which are moving. [now missing piece of Austria!]

Dimensions

Notes
An unusual and interesting postcard map of the Kingdom of Hungary, showing how it was divided by the Treaty of Trianon in 1920.

The Treaty of Trianon was imposed upon Hungary by the Allied powers after the First World War. The Kingdom of Hungary was half of the Austro-Hungarian empire, one of the principal combatants.

The Treaty of Trianon reduced the area of the country by 71.4%, and its population by 64%. Hungarian leaders were forced to accept the Allied terms and did so under duress.

This drastic reordering of the area was driven by the principle of self-determination of peoples, in an attempt to give all non-Hungarians their own national states.

Bibliography

Provenance

Price: £400

Inventory reference: 14305

© Daniel Crouch Rare Books Ltd | 2025