with the Courses and Distances, and how these Lands lie one from the other, and from other Lands.
With the heights of their degrees, and minutes, to their respective places where they are Situated.
Unto which is added
A List containing the Monethly wages of all Officers, Seamen, and others serving in the Seaves Ships at Sea: And as to the wages to common Sea-men, to their shares in Prizes, and relieving of sick and wounded; which is referred to the Commissioners for ordering and managing the Affairs of the Admiralty and Navy, with power to see the particulars aforementioned put in execuri-on, and to give such Orders from time to time, as shall be requisite for the effecting thereof.
Wished not onely for Sea-men and Merchants, but for all that desire to know where our Shores lye, either on the Coast, or the Neighbouring Lands, that any man may be as experienced in the Sea-Coast by this Card, as they have been by Land, by the 52 Mapps of England, wherein the Villages and smallest Places were known to travell unto them and where the Land Armies did lye.

Notes
An early English mariner’s chart, intended to break the Dutch monopoly on such productions. “The work is accompanied by pilotage instructions, tables of saemen’s wages by rank, entitlement to prize money, sick pay etc.” (Wardington). On the title-page, which contains a succinct summary of the whole work, Jenner states his aim to be that “any man may be as experienced in the Sea-Coast by this Card, as they have been by Land, by the six Mapps of England wherein the Villages and smallest Places were known to travell unto them. and where the Land Armies did lye"; this is a reference to his famous 'Quartermaster's Map.
