

Lithograph map, dissected and mounted on linen, manuscript annotations in red, folding into original red cloth slipcase, lettered in gilt.

SOUTHWARK

Metropolitan Borough of Southwark

Author
HARRISON, Arthur

Publication date
1902.

Publisher
Stanford’s Geographical Establishment,

Publication place
London,

Physical description
Lithograph map, dissected and mounted on linen, manuscript annotations in red, folding into original red cloth slipcase, lettered in gilt.

Dimensions
750 by 655mm. (29.5 by 25.75 inches).

Notes
A lithographed map of the borough of Southwark, covering an area extending from Temple to the Tower of London to Kennington.

The borough is enclosed within a red line; other red marks added by a later hand pick out schools. The map shows the 1825 London Bridge designed by John Rennie, with the church of St Magnus the Martyr on the north side. The Oval, marked as the Surrey Cricket Ground, had only been built half a century before and had hosted the first international test cricket match in England in 1880. The famous asylum, the Bethlem Royal Hospital, is shown in its third site, where it moved in 1815 in order to give the patients more room for outdoor activities. The building is now the Imperial War Museum.

Unrecorded in COPAC and WorldCat.

Bibliography

Provenance

Price: £650

Inventory reference: 11465

© Daniel Crouch Rare Books Ltd | 2025