Notes
Rare chart of the track of the ship Hannah rounding the Cape of Good Hope. Probably privately printed, only one other example known, in private hands.

Captain John Lamb (1790-1862) was a Royal Naval Officer who saw active service during the Napoleonic Wars. He retired from the Navy in 1814 on half-pay. He then joined the merchants Buckles, Bagster & Buchanan where he served as master of several ships involved in the convict trade from England to Australia. He would later settle with his family in Sydney and amassed a great fortune in the shipping and wool trades. In 1855 he retired to England, but missed his family so much that he returned to Sydney in 1857.
