Notes

Japanese crucifixion, a practice introduced into Japan in the early modern period.

Jodocus Hondius (1563-1612) bought the plates of Gerard Mercator's 'Atlas' in 1604. Mercator's 'Atlas' had underperformed in comparison with the work of his contemporary Abraham Ortelius, 'Theatrum Orbis Terrarum'. Hondius updated and added to Mercator's work and reissued it.
