Notes
A plan of Kyoto (Meaco) from a later edition of the Abbé Prévost's travel book, the 'Histoire Generale des Voyages'.

Prévost's work was an expansion of Thomas Astley's 'Voyages and Travels' compiled by Astley from sources including John Atkins, Theodor de Bry and Jean-Baptiste Lavat. The first seven volumes of Astley’s work were translated into French by the Abbé Antoine François Prévost (1697-1763). As well as translating Astley’s work, Prévost added a general history of discoveries and colonisation to his own lifetime, as well as an overview of the historical sources he used.

The maps and plans in Prévost’s work were drawn by Jacques Nicolas Bellin, and engraved by Guillaume Dheulland.
